

MinLaw COVID-19 (Wedding) Mediation Programme

Do I qualify?

You are a wedding couple or vendor:

- ✓ In a contract for sale of goods or services related to a wedding event
- ✓ Wedding event date on or after 8 May 2021
- ✓ Affected by COVID-19 measures, and unable to reach an agreement with the other party

What happens?

If both parties agree, you can attend a mediation session, for free.

A neutral, trained mediator will facilitate the discussion and help you work towards a mutually acceptable solution. Any agreement reached will override earlier agreements, and will be binding on both parties.

Benefits of mediation

- High success rate of settlement
- Savings of time and money for parties
- Preserves relationships between parties
- Confidentiality

How to participate?

Submit a request for mediation by 30 April 2022, using the form and instructions at www.go.gov.sg/request-for-mediation.

MinLaw will aim to hold the mediation within two weeks after both parties agree to mediation. The mediation session will generally be conducted virtually, and take about two hours.

Take note

Your current contractual terms remain binding:

- In the period before your mediation session
- If the other party does not agree to mediation
- If no agreement is reached during the mediation
